

CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, FRESNO
SERVICE IMPACT ON THE COMMUNITY REPORT
2007-2008 ACADEMIC YEAR

The following table details the contributions provided to the region through California State University, Fresno's indicated community service-learning projects. All figures are based on information collected from across the university by the Jan & Bud Richter Center for Community Engagement and Service-Learning.

The Independent Sector's most recent estimates (2006) place the value of an hour of volunteer time in California at $21.97. (See <http://www.independentsector.org>). This figure was multiplied by the number of service hours Fresno State students provided in 2007-08. The economic impact of that service is, therefore, estimated to be in excess of $14.6 Million. When combined with the financial support students gained by involvement in these programs, the total economic impact of the university's community service-learning efforts is estimated at over $15.9 Million for the 2007-08 academic year.

*1 There are 6 Fresno State Blood Drives each year. A large number of students, staff and faculty are regular donors who participate in each drive. It is not practical to identify the number of unique donors. Therefore, no specific number of Fresno State community members involved is provided for this initiative.

*2 In order to prevent double counting, the numbers cited for Community Service courses that are not in parenthesis represent the figures for non-Community Service Scholarship and Future Scholars students enrolled in the Community Service classes. The numbers in parenthesis is the total number of students enrolled and hours of service for Community Service classes.

*3 The Work Study funds indicated were used specifically for community service placements with area nonprofits. The figure does not include Work Study funds earned by Fresno READS or Jumpstart Fresno students.

*4 Financial support listed for Fresno READS and Jumpstart Fresno includes Work Study and AmeriCorps Education Awards earned by these students.
